Description

Officiating Soccer: Fouls and Misconduct has been created to help soccer officials identify different forms of rules violations in order to make games safe and fair. It describes various forms of fouls, such as tripping, holding, and obstruction and how to spot them during a game. This course gives guidance on how to deal with disciplinary issues and other forms of unsporting contact and provides examples of situations to call fouls and show cards.

Please complete this training, and send me how long it took you (so you can get paid). It should take about 2 hours, and you don't need to complete it in one sitting. This is arguably better than our 4-hour training we had. I recommend everyone complete this, so we can be consistent on all of our fields.
